Online Safety Act

Keep up to date with Ofcom's approach to implementing the Online Safety Act.

Ofcom's detailed month-by-month roadmap, sets clear expectations for social media platforms, dating and messaging apps (updated 2nd July 2026), as they work toward full compliance with the Online Safety Act.

Popular sites and apps must enforce minimum ages, tackle grooming, make feeds safer and test products rigorously

Effective minimum-age policies.

Ofcom research shows that widespread minimum age policies of 13 are still not being properly enforced by tech companies, with 72% of children aged 8-12 accessing their sites and apps.

Failsafe grooming protections

Ensuring strict controls to stop strangers being able to contact children they do not know on their platforms. That includes using highly effective age assurance to check users' ages

Tips from the Children's Society

The Children's Society has put together some tips for parents and carers on keeping children safe while still enabling them to enjoy their time online.

- Open up: Create a space where your child(ren) can come to you when they're ready and not feel judged.
- Set boundaries together: Come to an agreement on privacy settings with your child(ren), where they feel listened to and involved.
- Discuss the aims: Talk to your child(ren) about online risks.
